AlliedBarton Security Services Named to Chief Executive Magazine's 2016 Best Companies for Leaders

CONSHOHOCKEN, PA – January 11, 2016 – AlliedBarton Security Services, the industry's premier provider of highly trained security personnel, has been named one of the Best Companies for Leaders in 2016 by Chief Executive Magazine. This year AlliedBarton ranked #2 on the Private Companies List, moving up from #7 in 2015.

"This incredible recognition honors our organizational commitment to prioritize and develop employee leadership," said Jim Gillece, Chief People Officer and SVP Human Capital Management, AlliedBarton. "Fostering leadership and career development produces a culture that values and champions personal and professional excellence. Our steadfast commitment to employee engagement and leadership results in unparalleled service delivery."

Chief Executive and Growth Play, a sales and leadership research and consulting firm headquartered in Chicago, interviewed and surveyed world class companies and identified what organizations were fostering leadership throughout different levels of management. Rankings were also affected by a company's reputation among its peers as a source for well-rounded talent, as well as the number of management personnel recruited from internal talent pools.

"Strong leadership at every level of our organization is essential to our ability to provide tailored security solutions and respond to our clients' daily and emergency security challenges," added Gillece. "This recognition is a tribute to the entire AlliedBarton team."
